Discolored Water & Conservation Notice Update

Since issuing the Voluntary Water Conservation Notice earlier this week, we have seen water levels at our reservoir begin to increase. We would like to thank the residents and businesses we serve for their cooperation and conservation efforts.

We are asking the public to continue conserving water while reservoir levels continue to recover.

Residents and businesses may notice slight discoloration of the water during this time. Due to current reservoir conditions, water is being drawn from a lower intake at the dam, which may result in increased sediment and turbidity in the water.

The water remains safe for consumption. However, caution should be exercised when washing clothes, as discoloration may cause temporary staining. As reservoir levels continue to improve, we expect the discoloration to gradually decrease. Thank you for your continued cooperation and efforts to conserve water.
